

Still A Thing: Managing Social Media In The Public Workplace

CALPELRA 2019 Annual Conference
November 20 | 3:30-5:00
San Carlos 3

Social media is here to stay. While employers have been living with the workplace consequences of social media for some time, this technology continues to vex and regularly challenge employers. In this cutting-edge session, you'll learn about the most recent legal developments related to social media in the public workplace, including cyber-vetting employees, free speech protections for employees' online activities, protected online union activity, use in discipline and litigation, and more. You'll also learn about appropriate policy language regarding employee use of social media, and appropriate (and inappropriate) limitations on employee use of social media.

RELATED PRACTICES

Employment Law and Litigation

RELATED PEOPLE

Private: Traci I. Park
Private: Kelly A. Trainer

© 2025 Burke, Williams & Sorensen, LLP. All rights reserved.