Colin joined Burke in 2025 after spending 12 years working for separate California based litigation law firms. He works out of Burke's San Francisco office, providing personal service and dedication to the firm's clients. Colin has successfully defended professionals of multiple disciplines, individuals and businesses in lawsuits and other forms of dispute involving construction defects, personal injury and payment claims. He has successfully defended and prosecuted breach of contract, assumption of risk, waiver and release, and equitable and indemnity claims. Colin also provides general counselling and advisory services to design and construction professionals, and serves as monitoring counsel for claims located throughout the US.
