David Manrique is an associate in Burke's litigation practice group. During law school, David was actively involved in advocacy and public service, serving on the Moot Court Executive Board and participating in the UCI Law Moot Court Competition. He also held leadership roles with the Latinx Law Student Association and served as a student leader in the Incarcerated Individual Letter Writing Project. In addition, David gained hands-on litigation experience through the Consumer Law Clinic, where he conducted legal research, drafted motions, and assisted in trial preparation.

Throughout law school, David clerked with the Riverside County District Attorney's Office for all three years. After passing the bar, David was sworn in as a Deputy District Attorney with the Riverside County District Attorney's Office, where he prosecuted felony, misdemeanor, and juvenile matters. While serving as a prosecutor in Riverside, David conducted over forty preliminary hearings, managed high-volume caseloads, handled contested hearings, and took two jury trials to verdict. Now, David plans to use his background in prosecution to assist the Law Enforcement Defense Group at Burke.
