

RELATED PRACTICES

Eminent Domain

RELATED PEOPLE

Alan A. Sozio

RELATED PRACTICES

Employment Law and Litigation
Labor Relations

RELATED PEOPLE

Rachel E. Balchum

Liens

It is a common perception that lienholders like to be paid first when a property owner is compensated following the acquisition of property. However, California's Eminent Domain Law thinks differently when only a partial taking occurs.

Section 1265.225(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that, when only a partial taking of property occurs, a lienholder may share in the award only if its underlying security interest is impaired. In other words, if the value of the remaining property equals or exceeds the outstanding amount owed on the lien, then no portion of the just compensation is apportioned to the lienholder. If the parties cannot agree, this determination is made by the court.

Subsection (b) to Section 1265.225 allows the lienholder and property owner to make any agreement otherwise. To this end, lienholders often include in the initial signed loan documents language redistributing in their favor the amount of any future award of just compensation, even where only a partial taking occurs.

'CalChamber's federal challenge to SB 399 'captive audience' meetings law' - Rachel Balchum, Daily Journal Guest Column

Labor & Employment and Litigation partner Rachel E. Balchum authored a Daily Journal guest column article entitled "CalChamber's federal challenge to SB 399 'captive audience' meetings law". Rachel analyzes how California's new 'Worker Freedom and Employer Intimidation Act' (SB 399), banning mandatory workplace meetings on political, religious, or union matters, faces a constitutional challenge from business groups, sparking a legal battle that could redefine workplace speech and labor law boundaries. Click here to read this article.

RELATED PRACTICES

Eminent Domain

RELATED PEOPLE

Alan A. Sozio

Condemning Future Interests - Part 2

In my last post, I discussed how contingent future interests are valued, where it is shown the contingent future interest holders are entitled to compensation under Section 1265.410(a)(1). But what if they are not? What are the rules for valuing the property then?

Subsection (b) to speaks to this situation. Where the use restriction requires the property to be devoted to a particular charitable or public use, and it did not appear that the property's owner would be violating the use restriction in the near future, the property must be valued at the same or similar charitable or public use coupled with the same contingent future interest. But, presumably, no compensation to the holder of the future interest.

Section 1265.410 is silent as to how the property is to be valued if the use restriction is not for a charitable or public use. So, presumably, the highest and best use of the property would apply.

Legal Trends 2024

Legal Trends 2024

Burke, Williams & Sorensen, LLP is pleased to present its 17th Edition of Legal Trends. This edition continues the tradition of producing Legal Trends. The purpose of Legal Trends is to inform employers about the key areas of labor and employment law, and to inform employers about new developments in these areas of law. Legal Trends provides a special focus on these topics for public employers.

With over 170 attorneys in ten offices throughout the state, Burke has a remarkable combination of experience in California public labor relations and employment law, involving the representation of numerous cities, special districts, school districts, community college districts, and other public entities.

Burke will continue to provide this vital publication to public sector employers in the years to come. This new edition continues to provide the insightful and concise information you have come to rely on from Legal Trends.

RELATED PRACTICES

Employment Law and Litigation
Labor Relations

RELATED PEOPLE

Private: Viviano E. Aguilar
Private: Anna G. Barker
Gena B. Burns
Marvin C. Cho
Timothy L. Davis
Sheila Delshad
Dhruva (Neel) Ghanshyam
Allison B. Hernandez
Private: Vanessa M. Hooker
Kate S. Im
Donald V. Le
Michelle H. Le
Jack P. Lipton, Ph.D.
Zachery A. Lopes
Monica Sanchez McQueen
Ghazaleh Modarresi
Sally Trung Nguyen, AWI-CH
Natalie F. Price
N. Richard Shreiba
Private: Briana D. Williams
Mark E. Wilson

The material contained in this publication is informational only, and is not intended to constitute professional legal counsel or a legal opinion. Although we consider this communication to be timely and accurate, there is no substitute for personal counsel with a professional. Provided with specific facts, your attorney can fashion a solution sensitive to your needs.

Download Legal Trends 2024

“Editor-in-Chief’s Forward, Volume 51 , Issue 2” UC Law Constitutional Quarterly, Winter 2024

“Editor-in-Chief’s Forward, Volume 51, Issue 2” UC Law Constitutional Quarterly, Winter 2024

RELATED PRACTICES

Constitutional Law

RELATED PEOPLE

Zoë L. Grimaldi

“Editor-in-Chief’s Forward, Volume 51 , Issue 1” UC Law Constitutional Quarterly

“Editor-in-Chief’s Forward, Volume 51, Issue 1” UC Law Constitutional Quarterly, Fall 2024

RELATED PRACTICES

Constitutional Law

RELATED PEOPLE

Zoë L. Grimaldi

Condemning Future Interests - Part 1

Where there are contingent future interests in property acquired by eminent domain, the future interest holders may be entitled to compensation. This is because the value of the fee owner’s interest in the property is diminished to the extent of the value of the contingent future interest. Thus, any award for the value of the property must be apportioned between the fee and the future interest holder.

The methodology of apportionment is spelled out in Section 1265.410(a)(1) of the Eminent Domain Law. Where the property’s

RELATED PRACTICES

Eminent Domain

RELATED PEOPLE

Alan A. Sozio

acquisition violates a use restriction coupled with a contingent future interest granting a right to possession of the property upon violation of the use restriction, and violation of the use restriction was otherwise reasonably imminent (i.e., to the exclusion of any consideration of the eminent domain proceeding), the owner of the contingent future interest is entitled to compensation for its value.

In short, section 1265.410(a)(1) contemplates a situation in which the grantee of the conditional deed intends to continue to comply with the condition indefinitely, but is prevented from doing so because the public agency has seized title to the property through the power of eminent domain. And because it applies in situations where the holder of the present interest's intentions are frustrated by the condemnor, it necessarily assumes that the present interest holder and the condemnor are separate entities dealing at arm's length.

Note that if the present interest holder and the condemnor are one in the same, then Section 1265.410(a)(1) does not apply and the condemnor is not entitled to receive a portion of the condemnation award. See City of Palm Springs v. Living Desert Reserve (1999) 70 Cal.App.4th 613.

First Circuit Affirms Dismissal of Marine Mammal Protection Act Challenge to Massachusetts Offshore Wind Project

California Land Use Law & Policy Reporter, Volume 33, Number 19, July 2024

RELATED PRACTICES

Environmental, Land Use, and
Natural Resources

RELATED PEOPLE

Hina Gupta

Council on Environmental Quality's Final Phase 2 Rules for NEPA Streamline Process but Also Expand Agency Review

Environmental, Energy, & Climate Change Law & Policy Reporter,
Volume 4, Number 10, July 2024

RELATED PRACTICES

Environmental, Land Use, and
Natural Resources

RELATED PEOPLE

Hina Gupta

"Editor-in-Chief's Forward, Volume 51 , Issue 4" UC Law Constitutional Quarterly, Summer 2024

"Editor-in-Chief's Forward, Volume 51, Issue 4" UC Law Constitutional Quarterly, Summer 2024

RELATED PRACTICES

Constitutional Law

RELATED PEOPLE

Zoë L. Grimaldi